STRIKE VOTE ON RAIL WAGE CUT IS CHIEF'S FORECAST

Executive Council of Maintenance Brotherhood Goes Into Session.

400,000 MEN AFFECTED

Labor Board, In Divided Ruling, Orders Reduction of Five Cents an Hour Beginning July 1; Minority on Board Opposes the Reduction.

By Associated Press

DETROIT, May 29—Ballot that a strike vote would be ordered by the executive council of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Railway Employes and Railway Shop laborers was expressed today by E. F. Grable, grand president of the organization, as the council went into session to consider the wage reduction ordered yesterday by the Railroad Labor Board.

CHICAGO, May 29.—More than $48,000,000 was slashed from the wages of 400,000 railway employes in a decision by the United States Railroad Labor Board last night.

The decreases, which averaged five cents per hour in the majority of cases followed cuts of $400,000 made last July by the board. The decision, however, affects mostly maintenance of way workers, although decisions are pending affecting other classifications.

If the wage cuts made in the latest decision are extended to other decisions expected soon it was pointed out in railway circles much of the $600,000,000 increase by the board in 1920 will be wiped out and wages restored to a level which railway officials have said the board will lead to a new era of development and open the way to the employment of 200,000 men.

The decision was signed by the three railway members of the board and the three members representing the public. A dissenting opinion was filed by the three members representing the labor group. The majority opinion said that the wage cuts, effective on July 1, were made in accordance with decreases in the cost of living. The minority opinion contended that the wage scale provided by the decision was insufficient to sustain life on the basis of American standards.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL DIES ON EVE OF HER GRADUATION

On the eve of her graduation from the Connellsville High School, Miss Ethel Mae Swallop, 18 years old, well-known young woman of the West Side, died Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the family home at 217 North Eleventh street, West Side, following a brief illness. Wednesday morning she struck her left leg against a chair, causing a very slight bruise. She suffered no pain from the injury until Wednesday night, it becoming more excruciating each hour. The family physician was summoned and hopes for her recovery were entertained until Saturday night when acute meningitis developed.

Miss Swallop studied hard in order to make the required marks for graduation and it is said that she was in such a weakened condition that she did not have enough vitality to ward off her sickness.

Her gowns for the graduation exercises had been completed, together with all other preparations for the several events preceding the final exercises. She will be buried in the dress she was to have worn on the night of the commencement exercises.

Miss Swallop was born in Connellsville February 13 1904, a daughter of George and Bessie Newcomer Swallop, and was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church and an active worker in the Sunday school. West Va. Operators May Take Steps to End Coal Strike Soon

CHICAGO, May 29.—A change of tactics by mine operators in several competitive districts is about to be put into effect that may end the coal strike by July 1, T. L. Lewis, secretary of the New River Coal Operators Association, said today. Mr. Lewis, who is a delegate to the convention of the National Coal Association, now in session here, was president of the United Mine Workers of America from 1908 to 1911.

"There is a growing unrest among the miners at lack of change in the situation and the inactivity of their leaders," Mr. Lewis said. "They are running short of funds, which adds to the unrest."

Operators are planning to reopen their mines on the basis of the 1917 scale. It is expected this will bring pressure upon the union officials to begin negotiations.

ALWAYS BE YOUR BEST IS MESSAGE TO SENIOR CLASS

Prefacing his sermon with a tribute to Miss Ethel Mae Swallop, a senior in the Connellsville High School, and a member of the 1922 graduating class, who died Sunday morning, Dr. Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College, of Oberlin, O., preaching the annual baccalaureate sermon, urged on the 98 boys and girls dressed in the gray caps and gowns and grouped in front of him him in the middle seats of the High School Auditorium to at all times "be at your best," the greatest achievement in a lifetime.

"Be persistently at your best," was the strong message delivered by Dr. King in one of the best class day sermons ever heard in this city. The huge auditorium was packed with a throng that followed every word of the speaker, an interesting talker, who held the complete attention of his audience.

He told the graduates to keep best in health, work, and character. He pointed out that to be at their best, persons should stay persistently in the presence of the best. "The rest will take of itself," he said.

Regarding health and growth he said the man who had ceased to grow was stagnant and ready to die. Referring to work he declared no one should ever despise his work or his opportunity.

"Fill the present task," he said. "The man who does his best every time is the man for whom success awaits."

Referring to character he asked that only the greatest possibilities be pressed towards, made the goal. He suggested that by keeping "at your best" an influence uplifting to all is would be created.

"Always give your best service," he said. "That means be your best and share your best."

Speaking on a supreme service to mankind, he said, that being the "kind of a man you ought to be," and impressing on others this noble character was the greatest thing a man could do.

"Fulfill the best possibilities of your nature," he told his audience. "Be physically fit and have decision of government. Be self mastered me."

Remarking that many were afflicted with the ability to do a thing but did not strive to accomplish their utmost, he declared that "he who is good is the enemy of the best."

Persistence, he declared, is essential to skill expertness and success.

Again sounding the message to "be at your best and share your best," he declared the individual's contribution to the community lay in being what he should be and whether he shared his vision. "No one can keep his vision," he stated. "He must share it or lose it."

There were no church services in Connellsville last evening and the program at the school was presided over by Rev. J. L. Proudfit, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. C. E. Richmond, pastor of the Greenwood Methodist Episcopal Church gave the invocation and Rev. B. W. Hutchinson pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church read the Scripture lesson. Rev. J. F. Scott and Rev. E. H. Stevens, pastors of the United Presbyterian and Baptist Churches respectively, offered prayers. Rev. J. H. Lambertson, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, pronounced the benediction.

Misses Emma and Mildred Welsh sang a duet, "Whispering Hope," and an anthem "The Light of the World," was sung by the High School chorus. "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "America" were sung by the audience.

Senator Crow at Mountain Home

After five months in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg, United States Senator William E. Crow is at his summer home in the mountains near Chalk Hill. He was taken to Uniontown Saturday evening in a special car on the Pennsylvania train and was removed to his mountain home by automobile. The senator stood the trip very well and was a happy man when he reached his destination.

The senator had been anxious to go to his home in the mountains and because of the approach of the hot summer months, physicians decided he could stand the trip. He had a better appetite, it was said, than for some time. There has been a noticeable improvement in his condition during the past few weeks. He will be unable to see visitors for some time, however.

FIVE MILLION TONS MARK REACHED IN COAL PRODUCTION

Largest in Any Week Since the Strike Was Inaugurated, April 1.

A MORE ACTIVE DEMAND

And Higher Prices Calls Mines Into Operation in the Unaffected Districts; Heaviest Gains in South; Beehive Coke Continues to Increase.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, May 29. — The eighth week of the coal strike opened with a decided increase in production, says the weekly report of the United States Geological Survey. The returns so far received indicate an output of soft coal close to 5,000,000 tons. Production of anthracite, however, remains practically zero.

Final reports for the seventh week of the strike, May 15-20, show an output of 4,472,000 tons of bituminous coal and 8,000 tons of anthracite, a total of 4,480,000 tons. In the corresponding week of 1920 the combined output of anthracite and bituminous coal was 11,090,000 tons, and a year ago our mines were producing 9,780,000 tons. Considering the anthracite and bituminous mines as a common supply of fuel, it will be seen that the quantity of coal now being raised is still more than 6,000,000 tons short of the weekly rate in a year of active business, and nearly 5,000,000 tons short of that in the year of depression, 1921.

The increase during the week, May 22-27, may be judged from the fact that loadings on Monday exceeded by 652 cars the highest figure previously reported since the strike began. A further increase on Tuesday carried loadings above the 15,000-car mark, and the total for the first four days of the week exceeds by 11 per cent the corresponding period of last week. It is expected therefore that final returns will show an output not far from 5,000,000 tons.

The increase is largely in response to higher prices and more active demand, calling into production mines which have hitherto been working only part-time in the districts not affected by the strike. To a much smaller extent the increase results from resumption of work at mines at first closed by the strike in Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia. Shipments are increasing slowly out of the Connellsville coke region and the Kanawha and New River fields. From the strongly organized districts no resumption of work has been reported. The region to furnish the greater part of the increase in output is the Middle Appalachian, where the mines are rapidly approaching the maximum production.

The accumulation of unbilled coal at the mines is steadily declining. A count of all roads, practically complete, showed a daily average number of unconsigned loads of bituminous coal to be 8,967, against 10,837 the week before. In the first week of the strike it had been 30,739 cars.

The reduction in the number of unbilled loads has naturally been most rapid in the fields serving the great industrial section north of the Ohio and Potomac. In the Northern Appalachian coal fields, for instance, the number of no-bills is now practically stationary. In the Far West, on the other hand, it is still large.

Furthermore, it is clear that much of this coal though unbilled is being held for special consumers.

The increased production was due to a more active demand rather than to the return of striking miners to work. A slight increase in the Westmoreland and Connellsville districts of Pennsylvania was largely offset by further shutdowns in Somerset county. In Southeast Kentucky the men continued to drift back to work, but the net change in production was small.

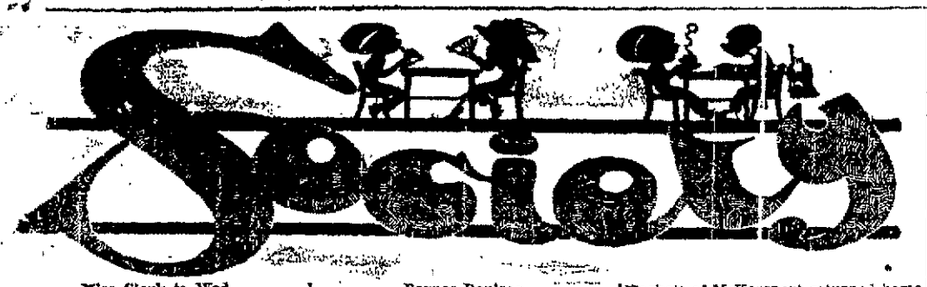

The production of beehive coke continues to increase slowly. Reports from the 20 principal coke-carrying roads indicate that in the week ended May 20 the total production was 100,000 net tons. The chief factor in the increase was greater activity in the Connellsville region, where four plants resumed operations. This increased the number of active plants to 30 against 62 on April 1. The present daily rate of production is nearly 50 per cent higher than that a year ago, but is only about 25 per cent of the rate in 1920.

Steve Katonka To Be Executed For Double Crime

Steve P. Katonka, formerly of Lloydsville, Westmoreland county, who was sought in Connellsville several months ago, must go to the gallows, on June 16, in San Juan county, New Mexico, for the murder of two men, near Farmington, N. M., last August. His wife must serve not less than five, nor more than 30 years, in the state penitentiary.

A verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was brought in against Katonka, and he was sentenced by Judge Reed Rollonan to die on the scaffold June 16.

Mrs. Katonka, upon being placed on trial, entered a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Tacna-Arica: The Alsace-Lorraine of America

Just what is the "Tanca and Arica Controversy" which is holding the center of the diplomatic stage in Washington while special envoys from Chile and Peru try to solve it? The National Geographic Society answers this question in the following bulletin:

"The Tacna and Arica question can perhaps best be understood," says the bulletin, "if it is taken as a rough American equivalent of Alsace-Lorraine, Italia Irredenta, and the Danzig corridor, all jumbled together. On the surface, the Tacna-Arica matter may appear to be merely a question of whether a plebiscite shall be held and how, but there is a great deal more behind it. As a matter of fact it is intimately concerned with questions that involve Bolivia as well as Peru and Chile, though the first named country has no claim to the Tacna-Arica area itself and is not represented at the Washington meeting. Wars, treaties that are none too clear, indemnities, 'filibustering' expeditions, valuable mineral deposits, strong military positions, national sensibilities and politics—these are some of the many cross-currents that affect both the two-sided and three-sided aspects of the problem.

"Phases of the question can be traced back to the days when Peru and Bolivia were connected under the vice-royalty of Peru, but it became a full-fledged problem during the last quarter of the past century. Then Chile stopped more than 500 miles short of its present northern boundary, Peru extended some 300 miles farther south, and Bolivia—now the land-locked Switzerland of South America—had a coastline of nearly 200 miles. This 500-mile strip is largely a region of desert plateaus and rocky mountains, and 600 years ago it was considered very nearly worthless. Chile had not even adequately explored her northern frontier provinces, and Bolivia and Peru were far from being intimately acquainted with their territories. Then came the discovery of rich nitrate deposits in the Bolivian coastal region. There was a rush of miners and prospectors from various countries, among them many Chileans. When friction arose between the Bolivian government and a Chilean mining company over the payment of taxes, Chile sent soldiers and later declared war against Bolivia. Peru was drawn in as the ally of Bolivia, and from this three-cornered war the Tacna-Arica question was born.

"Chile was completely victorious, and as the spoils of war took the entire Bolivian coastal region with its nitrate beds. From Peru the victorious country took its southernmost province, Tarapaca, also rich in nitrates. Next to Tarapaca on the north lay the Peruvian province of Tacna with the port of Arica. This region Chile took for a 10-year period after which there was to be a plebiscite to determine to which country—Peru or Chile—the area should afterward belong. The details of the holding of this plebiscite were not clearly set out, and the two countries have never been able to agree as to the procedure.

"In the meantime, Bolivia, which had lost her road to the sea, continued to harbor the feeling that she had been missused and that some sort of 'corridor' should be provided for her. For years Bolivia accepted only a truce with Chile, unwilling to agree to the total loss of her sea provinces. At one time Chile agreed to sell the land-locked country a port and a roadway through the former Peruvian province of Tarapaca, but Peru strenuously objected and the deal fell through. Later Bolivia accepted a money indemnity.

"The treaty provision calling for a plebiscite for Tacna also provides that the country losing the land shall receive five million dollars from the winner. One solution of the matter which has been suggested by Bolivia is that she, in dire need of an outlet to a port, be ceded the disputed region, and that she pay five million dollars to each of the other two countries."

MRS. FRANK WILKIE, of Syracuse, N. Y., formerly matron at the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y., who says she is delighted with Tanlac since it restored her health after she suffered eight years.

"This is the first time in eight years that I have been free from stomach trouble and it is all because of the wonderful good Tanlac has done me," said Mrs. Frank Wilkie, 229 Cedar St., Syracuse. Mrs. Wilkie formerly resided in Buffalo and for two years was matron of the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y.

"I was eating scarcely enough to keep alive," she declared, "for I would rather not touch a bite than suffer the misery I knew would follow. Even sweet milk disagreed with me. I was sick in bed for two and three days at a time, and gas on my stomach made such awful pressure on my heart it almost cut off my breath. I had horrible dreams at night and in the morning was all tired out.

"Well, the longest day I live I will praise Tanlac, for my improvement has been simply remarkable. I have no more heartburn, my appetite is wonderful, I can eat most anything I want and my sleep is sound and restful. I am thoroughly delighted with Tanlac. It is wonderful."

NEWS OF DAY AT SCOTTDALE BRIEFLY TOLD

Big Turnout of Fans for Opening Game of Independent Ball Season.

TWO GAMES FOR TUESDAY

SCOTTDALE, May 29.—Scottdale baseball fans showed Saturday that they were really interested in baseball by the manner in which they turned out to see the opening game between the McKeesport Tubers and the Scottdale Independents. If the support for the balance of the season compares in any way with that of the opening game Scottdale will be sure to have a team that will make an excellent showing. The weather was ideal and the ground in perfect condition but the fans were disappointed when the Scottdale team went down to defeat, 10-8. The battery for McKeesport was Carson and Vetterly; for Scottdale, Horne and Smith.

Some changes will be made in the line-up of the home team tomorrow when it will meet the fast Reineckers Club of Pittsburg at Loucks Park. The morning game will be at 11:15 and the afternoon game at 3:15.

Fans at Saturday's game were satisfied that the Independents can play ball, despite the fact that they were defeated, when they consider that the Tubers had already defeated seven of the strongest aggregations around Pittsburg this season.

The Scottdale Military Band went to the ball ground and lent its support to the game. The first ball was pitched by Burgess Walter Schaffer, Chief of Police Frank McCudden caught it.

Defies Age By Using Howard's Buttermilk Cream For Complexion

Every Woman Who Values Her Complexion and Good Looks Should Read This.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"Some time ago," writes S. Janis Bolin, "you sent me a supply of your wonderful Cream and Soap. All I can say is that they are both magical. They take 10 years off a woman's looks. It is positively marvelous how they transform one's complexion. I have used the highest priced and most highly recommended Creams and Soaps on the market but have never found anything so good as Buttermilk Cream and Soap. For the inclosed check will you please send me another supply. I could have procured this from my druggist but I did not want to tell you how much I appreciated and enjoyed their use."

The first application of Howard's Buttermilk Cream will astonish you. It creates beauty almost like magic for the most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest and most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough arms and hands snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the slightest shininess or greasiness of the skin.

It is absolutely harmless and will neither produce nor stimulate the growth of hair. Within 24 hours Howard's Buttermilk Cream is guaranteed to work a marvelous transformation. If you cannot obtain locally send 10 cents (silver or stamps) for generous trial package of both Cream and Soap. Howard Bros. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. —Advertisement.

Give It to Them—

This trial tube—watch their teeth improve

If you prefer, let your children make this test. Let them brush their teeth a few days in this modern way. Then look and see what film removal means.

This is a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Millions now employ it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Let someone in your home this week show the benefits it brings.

Why teeth look dingy

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. It dims and may ruin teeth.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So film-coats have been almost universal.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and, despite the tooth brush, they have constantly increased.

Must remove it daily

Dental science has long been seeking a daily film combatant. Now two effective methods have been found. Authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with modern requirements. And these two film combatants are embodied in it. The name of the tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Millions of people of some forty races now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

Two other new effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which authorities now deem essential.

It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay.

Every application gives these great tooth-protecting forces multiplied effect.

Real protection now

Now you can know what really clean teeth mean. Pepsodent fights film-coats, starch and acids—all the great tooth enemies. Then it leaves the mouth in normal alkaline condition. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show something of the benefits it brings.

New beauty in a week

The Pepsodent effects are quickly seen and felt. This test will be a revelation to you.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Note the refreshing taste it leaves.

It will bring you prettier teeth, and quickly. But, more than that, it will bring you safer teeth. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

DUTY OF CIVILIANS ON MEMORIAL DAY.

While first place will always and by every right be accorded the veterans in the exercises of Memorial Day, and the part they have in it will be of greatest importance, the contributions of civilians will do much to make the observance all that it should be as a time and means for giving recognition to the men who helped preserve the heritages and traditions which have made the day glorious.

When Memorial Day was established by General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic by general order dated May 5, 1868, no provision was made for the coöperation of civilians. The order was directed alone to comrades to whom the appeal was made to observe May 30 "from year to year while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades."

From its inception the beautiful custom has made such a strong appeal to people outside the ranks of the veterans that it has become to be regarded as the duty of all citizens to do every needful thing to give the day an appropriate setting. The day was long ago proclaimed a national holiday. It has become invested with so much sacredness in our calendar of solemnized occasions that it has been designated the "Sabbath of Memory."

In our observance as civilians it is not enough that we lay aside our daily employment and regard ourselves as fortunate in having a day which we are free to devote to some form of recreation. We should do more than display the Flag at our homes and places of business. We should repair to the cemeteries where the formal exercises are held and by our presence our demeanor and our emotions of sad pleasure and solemn pride show that we, of a truth, believe the dead have not died utterly, but that the spirit of their service and sacrifice lives most gloriously and will live so long as the nation endures.

Fifty-four years have lapsed since the first Memorial Day was observed by the then young veterans of the Civil War. During the intervening period two additional wars have been fought and claimed their toll of young lives to give new sanctity to May 30, a sanctity, while different from the old, arises for the same reason, to honor those who have given their lives on the altar of liberty.

We cannot pay the debt of gratitude to the veterans of our three wars. The most we can do is to acknowledge this debt. That we can do by joining the veterans with heartiness and fervor in the privileged duty of making tomorrow sacred.

FALL IN!

Among ex-service men there is more or less aversion to parading. Most of them feel they engaged in enough of this ceremonial during the war to last for all time. For purposes of training, and for display upon occasion of the visit of officers of high rank to general headquarters, former soldiers no doubt performed their full share of duty of this kind. But parading as a means of showing respect to comrades who will never again hear a top sergeant's curt "fall in," is different. It is not a display; it is paying a tribute, not alone to those who were messmates, but to the veterans of all our wars and to the mothers and fathers of the boys who did not come back.

At least that is the way you, if a former service man, should feel about it and you will after you have read what the editor of The American Legion Weekly says of your duty tomorrow:

It's too bad you've grown too fat for your uniform. Honest it is. We sympathize with you. We've grown too fat for our own uniform. But we're going to hunt a Memorial Day parade and get in it and march, if they go 20 miles.

That's the way we feel about Memorial Day. We may bust a flock of buttons, and we may look like a compressed kite balloon, but we feel that so long as the country owes a duty of recognition to the men who fought for it, we owe a duty of recognition too. It's personal with us—like being kind to our parents. Probably during the war we paraded more than any other living person. We paraded before, after, and in the middle. But we're going to parade again.

We owe it to the Grand Army. Not that the Grand Army is going around asking our help; they're a pretty husky lot, everything considered, and spend more time thinking of ways to help us than you'd think. But they are grateful for our help, just the same, as this extract from G. A. R. General Order No. 5 will show:

To assist in this service has come the welcome aid of our sons and daughters and many auxiliary organizations, who ask the privilege of sharing in this honor. This assistance should be gladly accepted. During these later years the honor of the Nation has called for the same last full measure of devotion from its sons in yet other wars, and a greater and broader significance has been given to the Memorial Day, until now the whole nation observes it as sacred to the memory of its sons who in any age or on any field have given their lives for their country. Let the sons of veterans and the soldiers of all wars be earnestly invited to participate in these exercises, to the end especially that when the veterans of the Sixties are no longer here to do this work others may be ready to carry on the same patriotic service in the future.

Detail to police or fatigue duty is not the penalty for failure to report for Memorial Day parade formation. The penalty is one that will last longer and be more keenly felt. It is the regret you will suffer for having failed to honor the memory of your fallen comrades.

A Memorial Day Prayer

(By E. A. Blackman, National Chaplain, The American Legion.)

O thou God of noble heroism, we pray today for our fallen comrades. Amidst the hurry and worry of things and the fading memories of war, we pause for a moment to remember their supreme sacrifice. A flood of recollections comes to our minds of the associations and experiences of camp and field as we gently place the flowers over their sacred beds and drop a tear of tender sympathy.

Consecrate these thoughts and hallow these memories, O God, but, we pray Thee, banish from our hearts all hatred, prejudice and unholy pride and may we think only of the noble sacrifice and conscientious devotion to home and country that was their holy urge.

Bless the homes out of which these men and women went to dare and to die, and consecrate their patriotism and their willingness to give their best for the cause of right.

May the spirits of those heroes who have fallen in other just wars for righteousness, be joined by the spirits of these, our heroes of today, and grant that this mighty host may live forever and be a perpetual challenge to us, the living of earth, to the end that we too may dedicate our lives to noble deeds and high purposes.

May love of country and devotion to peace be exalted this day to holy passion and may the spirits of these, our beloved comrades, rest in peace with Thee.—Amen.

France's Empty Cradles

From Leslie's.

France's gravest danger is not external but internal. She is a waning nation. Notwithstanding the accession of Alsace-Lorraine, which approximately compensated in population for her war losses, she had nearly 400,000 less inhabitants in 1921 than in 1911. It will only be two or three years now before she will cease to be first of the Latin nations. Italy will have displaced her. Fecund Germany has five times as many babies in a year as sterile France. The tragic significance of this is unmistakable. No power of arms can indefinitely maintain a people unable to replenish itself.

A great French medical authority estimates that, unless his country's birth rate speedily increases, in less than a generation it will have degenerated into a second-class power of only 25,000,000 inhabitants, and a great military authority adds this touching and sorrowful warning: "France is dying because her cradles are empty." All the reparations in Europe can not compensate for this condition.

LITTLE GREEN TENTS.

Walt Mason

In St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Little green tents where the soldiers sleep,
And the sunbeams play, and the women weep,
Are covered with flowers today;
And between the tents walk the weary few,
Who were young and stalwart in 'sixty-two,
When they went to the war away.

The little green tents are built of sod,
And they are not long, and they are not broad,
But the soldiers have lots of room;
And the sod is a part of the land they saved,
When the flag of the enemy darkly waved,
The symbol of dole and doom.

The little green tents is a thing divine;
The little green tent is a country's shrine,
Where patriots kneel and pray,
And the brave men left, so old, so few,
Were young and stalwart in 'sixty-two,
When they went to the war away.

OUT OF DOORS.

When I find that I am getting
All wrought up with constant fretting
And the petty troubles grate me,
When the trifles irritate me,
Then I turn from hardwood floors
To the green grass out of doors.

When I quit the noisy city
With its constant cry for pity,
And the battering of hammer,
Grind of wheel and ceaseless clamor,
For the hillside and the trees
And the clover and the bees.

Out of doors I take my troubles
Where the kids are blowing bubbles,
And the birds above me chatter,
And I say: "Now what's the matter?
Open wide your pack of care
And let's see just what is there.

"You are sick and tired of duty
In a world of so much beauty!
Here are blooms of God's own making,
Here are sunshine and the breeze
And the glory of the trees.

"Can you pass by in blindness,
Seeing only man's unkindness?
Is your life so grim and sordid
That your soul is not rewarded
For the burdens it must bear
By such splendor everywhere?"

Oh, the times when I grow fretful
And of God's great love forgetful,
When I'm cross and glum and hateful
And embittered and ungrateful,
I go out of doors and stay
Till my doubts are blown away.

DECORATION DAY AT HOME.

By James Whitcomb Riley.

It's lonesome—dout' o' lonesome—
It's a Sund'y day to me.
It pears like—more'n any day I nearly ever see;
Yit, with the Stars and Stripes above,
a-flutterin' in the air
On every Soldier's grave I'd love to lay a lily there.

They say, though, Decoration Day is ginerly observed
'Most everywhere—esp'cially by soldier boys that's served—
But me and Mother never went—we seldom git away—
In plum o' fact we're allus home on Decoration Day.

They say the old boys march through the streets in columns grand,
A-followin' the old war tunes they're playing in the band—
And citizens all jinin' in—and little children, too—
All marchin' under the shelter of the old Red, White and Blue.

With roses, roses, roses, everybody in the town
And crowds o' little girls in white, jest fairly loaded down—
Oh! don't the boys know it, from their camp across the hill?
Don't they see their comrades and the old Flag wavin' still?

Oh, can't they hear the bugle and the rattle of the drum?—
Ain't they no way we can coax 'em, through the roses, jest to say,
They know that every day on earth's their Decoration Day?

We've tried that—me and Mother—where Elias taken his rest,
In the orchard—in the uniform, and hands across his breast,
And the Flag he died for flutterin' and a-rippin' in the breeze
Above his grave—and over that—the robin in the trees.

It's lonesome—sort o' lonesome—
It's a Sund'y day to me,
It pears like—more'n any day I nearly ever see;
Yit, with the Stars and Stripes above,
a-flutterin' in the air
On every Soldier's grave I'd love to lay a lily there.

CHARMING WHITE CREPE

Of white crepe knit with its brilliant stripe of dandelion yellow, this winsome frock is a welcome style for the season The feature of the outfit are the long, square-shaped sleeves The smart little chapeau is of taffeta with an upturned brim of fan like pleating and a decoration pin on either side.

HUES OF RAINBOW

Wave of Color Feature of Season's Wearing Apparel.

Suits, Coats, Wash Dresses, Blouses, Mediums for Exploitation of the Gayest Shades.

A wave of color surges everywhere in fashions, until it seems as if we must almost have reached the high tide says a fashion authority While even the tailored suit and street coats have their share of brilliant shades in the way of trimmings wash dresses and blouses are wonderful mediums for exploiting the hues of the rainbow Here the designer has great latitude in the way of background to offset her art work.

The white blouse alone is capable of any amount of amplification through gay trimmings cleverly applied The past two years have seen marvelous development in the colorings brought out in wash fabrics. In these alone there is a multitude of variations in art tones. There are brilliant reds, all the tones seen in the flames of a wood fire, and browns, yellows and blues without number. The wonderful embroideries made prominent through the Russian vogue made their first appearance on blouses. Here we see the strong peasant colors which are most effective on a background of coarse linen although they are used on silks and even on thinner fabrics.

In the form of blouses we have almost as much variety as there is in color A very large proportion of the new blouses are Russian. The Japanese feeling is not lacking, for those with kimono sleeves in flowing style are easily traced to the land of the cherry blossom

There is a kinship between all articles of dress so we see separate blouses gathered to a band which comes about the hips of the wearer, the blouse itself falling in loose folds above this band These are very like the coats of many of the new suits. These hip bands to which the lower edge of the blouse is gathered, are a means of introducing a great deal of needlework. The art of all nations has been lavishly drawn upon to furnish patterns from which needlewomen may copy For instance, one such band is worked with Egyptian figures another in Chinese landscapes

Necklines and sleeves remain much the same the chief change is in the arrangement at the bottom of the blouse and in the colors and trimmings

WEAR HAND-PAINTED DRESS

Decoration Graces Some of the Organdie Frocks, French Method Assures Fast Colors.

A new feature of some of the organdie dresses is the hand painted decoration Instead of embroidery, jolly little bouquets are adroitly painted on the fabric here and there, and they say that the French method of painting assures absolutely fast colors no matter how many times the garment is washed Very tiny people are going to wear wide skirt hems this year—in fact the garments almost seem to be all hem No really fashionable baby will tolerate a hem narrower than four inches, and that seems to be about the minimum The exception, of course is in the buttonhold and embroidered frocks some of the prettiest ones showing scalloped edges done in hand embroidery, to match floral wreaths or nosegays on the dress itself.

COKERS TRIM PITTSBURG COLLEGIANS WITH EASE; TWO GAMES TOMORROW

Two Games Will Be Played Tomorrow; One in Morning and Afternoon.

LOCALS HITTING WELL

By James M. Driscoll
Sporting Editor.

Playing loosely in the first two innings and allowing the Pittsburg Collegians to get a two-run lead, the Connellsville Independents Saturday afternoon settled down and overwhelmed the ball boys of Dick Guy, hammering the offerings of Henderson for a total of 15 hits and getting 12 runs. Errors assisted in getting a number of Connellsvillians on bases, there being a total of four. But the Coker batsmen are due to a full share of credit.

The game was slow, caused by a number of injuries, the catchers seemingly getting the brunt of these. Whalen of the Collegians was struck on the head by a pitched ball and then later gave his knee a severe twist. Corbett of the Cokers had a finger cut by a foul tip and his shoe torn by the spike of a runner sliding into the plate.

Dunaway, on the mound for Connellsville, was wild at the start. He pitched himself out of a hole in the second when the bases were filled before a single out had been made. The side was retired with only one tally. The pitcher made up for this when he came to bat, placing the ball against the fence in left middle for three bases. He also had two-baggers. He had nine strikeouts.

Connellsville tied the score in the second inning and took a one-run lead in the third. There was nothing doing in the fourth and the next frame saw the fireworks begin. Four that inning, one the next and four in the seventh made a tremendous lead.

Coker fans were somewhat peeved over the two hours and five minutes it took to play the game but were satisfied with the showing by their team, which certainly should hold its own tomorrow against the Homestead Grays.

The longest hit of the game was a triple by Yanchus. The left fielder leaned so hard against a straight one that it sailed into the very deepest corner in middle field, where the fence from right and left field joins. Stove traveled as fast as his legs would carry him but couldn't stretch it into a homer.

Practically the same line-up will be on the grounds tomorrow morning and afternoon.

FINE CARD AWAITS BALL FANS OF CITY ON MEMORIAL DAY

The Connellsville Independents play off one of the biggest cards on their schedule tomorrow when the Homestead Grays, the champion colored team of Western Pennsylvania, will be here. Manager Posey has led his dark-skinned team to this city three times and each trip has taken down the honors. This year is to break the hoodoo, the management and followers of the locals feel.

Kozar will pitch the morning game and this moundsman knows his foe. He has worked before against the Grays and those warriors will step to keep pace with the 1922 independents.

KLAIRDALES LOSE TO EVERSON FIRE LADDIES

The Poplar Grove Klairdales were defeated Saturday, 7-5, in a game with the Everson Firemen at the Car Shop grounds at Everson. One bad inning, during which the Klairdales made a variety of misplays enabled the firemen to score enough runs to defeat the visitors. The game was interesting throughout. A large crowd of Klairdale fans accompanied the team.

On Wednesday evening of this week the Baltimore & Ohio Clerks will be the attraction at the Poplar Grove lot, the game to be called at 5:30 o'clock. Following the game the Klairdale team will hold a festival to raise funds with which to better equip the outfit.

* * * * * *

Beginning with tomorrow, a big ball, with the words "Ball Game Today" painted on it will be hung on the corner of the "Paramount Billiards" sign at Brimstone corner. This ball will always indicate when the Independents play. If a game is scheduled and the ball does not appear, fans will know the contest has been called off.

* * * * * *

At the games tomorrow the left field gate only will be used for automobiles. None will be permitted to enter at the York avenue gate.

* * * * * *

The crowd Saturday afternoon was fair. It was a good ball day, with the sun beating down hot.

* * * * * *

The crowd applauded Whalen, Collegian catcher, when he remained in the game after twisting his knee. He had already been dazed by a pitched ball which struck his head.

Feast of Weeks Will Be Observed By Jews Friday

The Feast of Weeks, known in Hebrew as Shabuoth, will be celebrated this year on Friday, June 2, in all Jewish congregations of this country. The festival is among those which orthodox synagogues observe on two successive days.

The particular interest occasioned by this feast rests in the modern use made of it by reform congregations. On this festival the children of the religious school who have attained a practical knowledge of Biblical history and Jewish religious beliefs and doctrines, as well as a leading knowledge of Hebrew, are graduated or confirmed.

The confirmation ceremony is a modern adaptation by the synagogue. In this rite the children testify to the love and justice wherewith God rules the destines of men and nations. It is a ceremony of consecration wherein the boy and girl, having reached the age of reason, pledge themselves to continue the covenant made between God and Israel at Sinai, when God gave the Decalog unto Israel and consecrated him a priest-people to serve at the altar of humanity.

CHURNING UP BUSINESS

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I DON'T believe you like the churn business very well, Tommy," speculated Helen Rand, as a powdered-looking superintendent went back into the factory with a small sheaf of orders.

"It's rotten," Tommy gloomily confided.

"How did you come to select churns?" wondered Mrs. Rushmore, replacing her subscription list in her handbag, but opening it again to see if Tommy's name was dry.

"I didn't," confessed Tommy with a half-vexed smile; "they selected me. The Johnson Churn company is the oldest factory of its kind in the country, and I didn't want to see a nice old business like that go under. They needed a combination of new capital and new blood, and I had it; and so there you are."

"Then why don't you like it?" puzzled Helen, her particularly effective eyes resting on him for a moment with frank approval.

"I don't seem to have the right kind of new blood," he worried. "My money kept the concern from bankruptcy, but nobody seems to care for the suggestions I make."

"It'll be all right, Tommy; you're lucky," laughed Helen as she rose to go.

The door opened, and there came in, from the factory yard, a tall and exceptionally fine-looking stranger who was dressed with extreme nicety. He bowed in the general direction of Tommy, but his glance, in sweeping from Mrs. Rushmore to Helen, caught, for a fleeting second, the eyes of the latter.

"We'll see you tomorrow night, Tommy," remarked Mrs. Rushmore; and Helen, as she went out at the door, waved Tommy a gay adieu.

"Mr. Spencer?" inquired the stranger.

"Correct," admitted Tommy, with a parting nod to the ladies through the crack of the closing door, and he examined the neatly engraved calling card. "What can I do for you, Mr. Ames?"

"I'd like permission to inspect your factory," requested Ames, with a smile of friendliness.

"I don't see any objection to that," granted Tommy, responding to the smile. He felt an instant liking for the man. "I'm afraid you won't see much, however."

"That's what I hope," returned the stranger.

Tommy looked at him wonderingly.

"That's a queer statement," he observed.

"It merely needs explanation," answered Ames, pleasantly. "I'm looking for a business opportunity."

"Come right in, the water's fine," invited Tommy with a grin. "That's what I was looking for; but I found it."

"So I understand," smiled Ames. "I came into town last night, and have been making inquiries all morning about your various local enterprises."

"How did you happen to pick out the Johnson Churn company?"

"Your pay roll. At one time this concern employed 500 workmen. Today is employs scarcely more than 200. If I can discover the reason for that, it might be of benefit to both of us."

"I think I'll go through the shop with you," suddenly decided Tommy, and led the way into the factory.

CHAPTER II.

The shop was apparently busy. The shafting of the long, low room was turning at a good speed, and in two squat rows was heavy looking machinery, about half of which, however, was idle.

"Where's that lumber going?" asked Ames.

"To the grooving machinery in the next room," replied Tommy.

"I see, what's that chap doing in this upper corner?"

"Smoothing the tubs. It's an interesting process."

Tommy led the way over to the corner. A man surrounded by high piles of the white-oak churn bodies was clamping them, by turns, in a clumsy lathe, and scraping them, both inside and out, first with steel shaving tools and then with sandpaper. Ames watched him interestedly for a few moments, and walked away. An elevator came down piled with staves. A boy unloaded them and carried them back to a groover, which stood near the rip-saw. Another boy came down the aisle pushing a huge box on wheels. It was filled with shavings.

"Where's that stuff going?" Ames wanted to know. He stopped the boy and reached his hand in the box.

"To the boiler room," Tommy told him.

Ames fished around in the shavings. He brought out a strip of oak two feet long, two inches thick, three inches wide at the butt and an inch wide at the point. He found three others just like it.

"You send a lot of these pieces to the fire, I suppose," he surmised.

"Stacks and stacks of them," worried Tommy. "It's the best oak we can buy, and it seems a criminal waste; but it's apparently unavoidable. They're trimmed from the edges of the staves, and the lumber can't be cut any more economically, because we must have the grain running straight."

"True enough," admitted Ames, "but something should be made of these pieces."

"I suggested that," said Tommy wrinkling his brow. "The superintendent and the manager laughed at the idea. They claim we'd scatter our force in making a market for another product. They've run this plant for years and years, and they know all about it. I don't."

"They were in financial difficulties when they got you, weren't they?"

"Yes, but there was a time when they made a good profit. They've been cramped for capital here lately."

"Why?" asked Ames.

"I don't know," mused Tommy. "The big cramp came right after they enlarged the plant. I guess they overplayed themselves; then they ran into heavy competition."

"I understand it now," nodded Ames. "They did all their big manufacturing in this room. When they enlarged the plant they didn't rearrange the machinery."

As they turned away, the superintendent, a wrinkled-faced old man, with a white mustache, came up to them and Tommy introduced him.

"Mr. Ames is studying our methods of production," Tommy explained.

"Are you familiar with the churn business?" inquired the superintendent, with ill-concealed resentment.

"I never saw a churn factory before," confessed Ames with a laugh.

"Oh," said the superintendent with a snort of amusement.

When Tommy and Ames returned from their inspection of the plant they found the superintendent in the office with the manager, a large, red-faced man, who was addicted to shirt sleeves and who chewed cigars. The superintendent was leaning on the corner of the manager's desk and both turned with displeasure as Tommy came in. The superintendent nodded and returned to the factory. Tommy introduced his caller, and explained his present mission in life.

"Yes," acknowledged the manager, giving Ames a thorough sizing up. "Brinley has just been telling me that you were giving Tommy some expert advice. What do you think of our plant, Mr. Ames?"

"Frankly, it's pretty bad," he began. "You should shut down your shop for about a month and rearrange all your effective machinery."

The manager leaned back in his chair and looked at Ames through heavy-lidded eyes.

"Do you like the color of the new rug Tommy put down" he insolently inquired.

Ames rose.

"I came here to talk business," he stated.

"Who invited you?"

"I did," unexpectedly declared Tommy. "There's something wrong with this factory, Lasset, and I'm going to find out why the Reverse Gear people can undersell us."

"Mr. Ames is as ignorant of a churn factory as you are," retorted Lasset. "You look after the finances, Tommy, and we'll tend to the factory."

Tommy studied the manager unsmilingly.

"I've made an unfortunate impression on you, Lasset," he presently observed. "You think I'm a saphead, because you got my money into this concern; but I want you to always remember that I came along with the money; and, by jinks, I'm going to see that I get my money's worth. Come on, Ames, we'll take a spin. I want you to talk to me."

CHAPTER III.

Tommy found Brinley out in the shop giving specific orders to the foreman of the stave department about the handling of his material.

"It's awkward to do it," the foreman was protesting when Tommy came up.

"It saved two handlings," Brinley insisted. "You take them now from here into the other building, finish and shape the ends, bring them back to have the edges grooved, and take them over to the other building again for assembling. By grooving the edges before you take them out of here we'll save two handlings."

"That's what I've always said," declared the foreman.

"You do as I tell you," ordered Brinley, and a very much disgruntled foreman walked away to injure the perfect workmanship in which he had taken so much pride.

"You're putting into effect one of Mr. Ames' suggestions," charged Tommy.

"It's something I've had in mind a long time," denied the superintendent.

"Then why didn't you do it?" Tommy immediately wanted to know.

"Mr. Spencer, I am supposed to answer leading questions like that to only one man in this concern," he stated. "I can't work for two bosses, and I won't."

"Some day you'll try not working for any," prophesied Tommy.

He returned to the office full of anger.

"Lasset, I found Brinley putting into execution one of Mr. Ames' suggestions, only doing it clumsily," he observed.

"Suppose he is," growled Lasset.

"I think it proves Ames' point," persisted Tommy.

"We don't need another ornamental man," remarked Lasset.

Tommy kept his temper pretty well, considering.

"We need a new manager," he declared. "You represented to me that if you were unhampered by debt, you could put us on a dividend-paying basis."

"The price of lumber's gone up since you came into the business," Lasset informed him.

"Not enough to account for our monthly losses," argued Tommy, "and not enough to make the Reverse Gear Churn company agree with us on a price. Our methods of production are full of leaks."

"Brinley has been a little careless," admitted Lasset. "I went after him this morning. I think we'll rearrange some of our machinery."

Tommy, who was a hearty young man, with no kinks on his shoulders, slammed a capable fist on his desk.

"By jinks, that does settle it," he swore. "If you'll go that far in stealing Ames' thunder, you prove to me that he was right in everything he wanted to do; and I'm going to have him out here."

"Are you aware that you don't own this factory?" demanded Lasset icily. "I hold more stock than you do, I control the situation, and I'm going to run this plant without interference. Who is this Ames, anyway? Where does he come from?"

"Blessed if I know," replied Tommy, "I never thought to ask him."

Lasset laughed.

"Exactly," he accused. "That shows how thoroughly impractical you are. Ames is probably a grafter. Has he any money?"

"He isn't hunting work," insisted Tommy. "He says he fairly aches to put this plant on its feet. It interests him. He'll come in here, remodel our factory and output, install our side lines, and inaugurate new selling methods, and he'll take one-third of the increase of profits for his share. Of course, we'll have to advance him money enough to live on."

"Now, we're coming to it," triumphed Lasset. "How much does he want?"

Tommy colored slightly. "Five hundred dollars a month," he stated.

Lasset threw himself back in his chair to roar. Then he jumped up and went out into the shop, and Tommy heard him laughing with Brinley. Tommy telephoned Ames. "It's no use, old man," he regretted. "I can't make them see it."

"You see it, don't you?" inquired Ames.

"I see it so hard it hurt my eyes," emphatically announced Tommy.

"Then sell me a share of stock," suggested Ames. "It's a stockholder he can't keep me out of the factory, and he can't keep me out of the stockholders' meeting the first of the month, find out how the stock is divided."

"I can tell you right now," returned Tommy, "I looked it up this morning. I own 45 per cent of the stock, Lasset owns 45, outside stockholders, who haven't attended a meeting for years, own 5 per cent, and the other 10 per cent is owned by the workmen."

"Then there's an easy solution," advised Ames in a relieved voice. "You'd best buy a little more stock, and win over as many of the workmen as possible to vote with you. At the next stockholders' meeting you can throw Lasset out, if need be. If you want to save a dollar of your investment, you must obtain private control."

"By jinks, I'll do it!" he decided. "Ames, suppose you come out and help me talk to the men?"

"All right," laughed Ames. "By the way, Tommy, can you lend me $500?"

For a moment Tommy hesitated. The sheer "nerve" of the thing took his breath. Just then Lasset came into the office.

"Certainly, old man," gulped Tommy. "I'll see you this noon."

He hung up and turned to Lasset.

"I'd like to draw five hundred dollars," he said, and grinned.

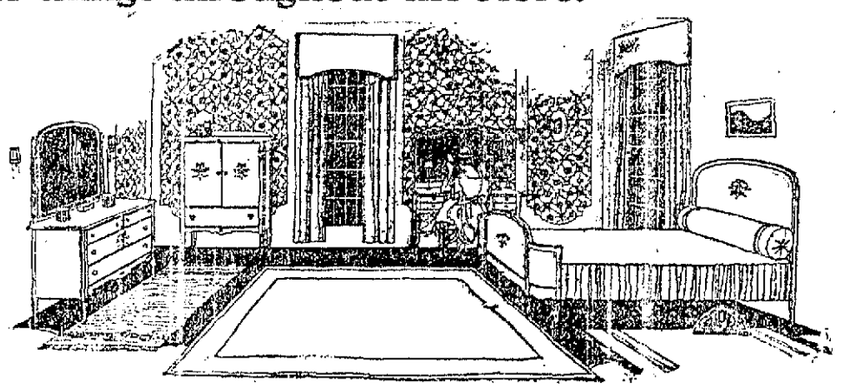

TO BE CONTINUED.

Memorial Day

MAY 30TH

A dream of country when the bugle rang
Above the eager surge of marching men;
The flame of youth that loved and laughed and sang
Through Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne's thickets, then—

Rest, and the long white homeward trail at last,
The shores he knew, old skies, before the call;
Hearts that are his, heads bared as he goes past,
Back with the Flag to which he gave his all.

J. H. Lenhart, carpenter, 412 Highland avenue, Connellsville, says: "My work has seemed to be very hard on my back and kidneys. At different times I have got a lameness in my back and soreness across my hips and through my loins. It was very troublesome for me to get around. At the same time my kidneys would act irregularly and the secretions would become highly colored and unnatural. A spell of this was always relieved promptly by Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at Clarke's Drug Store. They quickly removed the backache and regulated my kidneys. I think Doan's are a mighty fine remedy for these ailments."

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"THE WONDERFUL THING," the attraction at this theatre for three days, beginning today is a First National picture starring Norma Talmadge, supported by Harrison Ford and other well known players.

"The Wonderful Thing" was adapted for the screen version by Herbert Brenon and Clara Beranger, and the production itself is another in the series of those starring Miss Norma Talmadge and directed by Mr. Brenon, a combination which has resulted in some of the best pictures yet made by this popular star. Miss Talmadge portrays the role of Jacqueline Boggs, the French-convent-educated daughter of an American Hog King. "The Wonderful Thing" comes into her life when she meets Donald Mannerby, the eldest son of an impoverished aristocratic English family, who is an incorrigible flirt.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE MASKED AVENGER."—The leading attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre presents Lester Cuneo in the leading role. Melodrama rushes to thrilling climaxes in "The Masked Avenger." It is the story of a rich young idler, a ranch owner who turns masked rider in order to run the lawless band to earth. "The Masked Avenger" heralds the return to the silver sheet of Mrs. Wallace Reid. If this first picture is to be accepted as an indication of what Mrs. Reid can do in the way of dramatic acting, then she will be a welcome acquisition to the ranks of the screen's most popular stars. "The Masked Avenger" was written especially for Mr. Cuneo. Wednesday and Thursday Clara Kimball Young will be seen in "The Worldly Madonna."

THE ORPHEUM.

"FOOLS' PARADISE," Cecil B. DeMille's great production which Dorothy Dalton, Mildred Harris, Conrad Nigel, Theodore Kosloff, John Davidson and Julia Faye are seen in splendid roles, opened today at this theatre for a three-day attraction. A technically perfect and artistically beautiful reproduction of a portion of this little-known country has been reproduced as a background for a portion of the action of the story. The properties include a wide range of Siamese equipment ranging from incense burners, dancing girls' jewels, head pieces and costumes, to many-armed idols and crocodiles. The picture sets a new mark in the number and variety of wild animals and reptiles shown in motion pictures. With a plot that varies between the Mexican border and Siam, unusual opportunity was given Mr. De Mille for the employment of four footed beasts birds and reptiles. The list includes peacocks, monkeys, bears, elephants, snakes, donkeys, crocodiles, canary birds, horses and a lamb.

WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicines

Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between, was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. You may print my testimonial, as it is true."—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, 612 Miss. St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"as it is true." Every letter recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine. It is a statement telling the merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood tell each other about them. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has sold on merit.
